

Adventure Atlas

A Picture Book About Discovering Your Own Adventures

For 7-Year-Olds

Page 1

Adventure Atlas

By Worldwidebro

For Azriel

Page 2

Once upon a time, there was a boy named Max.

Max was seven years old.

He loved to explore everything.

One day, he found something magical on his grandmother's shelf...

[ILLUSTRATION: Boy with curious expression, reaching toward a mysterious book on a shelf]

Page 3

A beautiful old book called ADVENTURE ATLAS***

The cover was leather and gold.

But when Max opened it...

All the pages were blank!

"What is this?" Max asked his grandmother.

[ILLUSTRATION: Boy opening a large book, looking confused, pages glowing but empty]

Page 4

"That book," said Grandma, "is for YOUR adventures."

"What's an adventure?" Max asked.

"Anything interesting that happens to you," Grandma smiled.

"Big or small. You draw it. You write about it."

"You make it real."

[ILLUSTRATION: Grandmother pointing at the book, warm smile, cozy setting]

Page 5

Max didn't understand.

"But I don't go on adventures," he said.

"I just go to school and play."

Grandma laughed.

"That's exactly where adventures are!"

[ILLUSTRATION: Max looking uncertain, Grandma laughing kindly]

Page 6

The next day, Max noticed everything.

At school, he made a new friend named Zoe.

They built the tallest block tower ever.

Twelve blocks high!

Then it fell down.

They laughed so hard they cried.

[ILLUSTRATION: Two kids building with blocks, tower falling, both laughing]

Page 7

That night, Max drew it in his atlas.

He drew the blocks.

He drew Zoe's face.

He drew the tower falling.

He wrote:

"Today I made a new friend.

We built a tower.

We laughed when it crashed.

It was the best day."

[ILLUSTRATION: Boy at desk, drawing and writing carefully, focused]

Page 8

The next adventure was in the park.

Max found a caterpillar on a leaf.

It was bright green.

It had tiny legs.

It was eating the leaf very slowly.

Max watched it for ten whole minutes.

[ILLUSTRATION: Close-up of boy watching a caterpillar, magnifying glass, nature detail]

Page 9

Back home, Max drew the caterpillar perfectly.

Green. Dots. Little legs.

He wrote:

"I found a caterpillar today.

It was eating a leaf.

I wonder what it will become.

Maybe a butterfly!"

[ILLUSTRATION: Boy drawing the caterpillar carefully, colored pencils, concentration]

Page 10

Every day, Max found new adventures.

He played soccer and scored a goal.

He rode his bike without training wheels.

He made cookies with his dad.

He caught a firefly at night.

All of it went in the atlas.

[ILLUSTRATION: Montage of scenes - soccer goal, bike riding, baking, firefly]

Page 11

One day, his friend Zoe saw the atlas.

"Whoa!" she said. "You drew all of that?"

"Yeah," said Max. "Every adventure."

"Can I make one too?" asked Zoe.

"Yes!" said Max. "Adventures are everywhere!"

[ILLUSTRATION: Two kids looking at the atlas together, excited expressions]

Page 12

Now Max and Zoe explored together.

They found a cool rock collection.

They climbed the big tree in the park.

They made a secret fort under the bed.

They caught tadpoles in the creek.

They drew and wrote about everything.

[ILLUSTRATION: Kids exploring, climbing, collecting, having fun together]

Page 13

After three months, Max's atlas was full.

Fifty pages.

Fifty adventures.

Big ones. Small ones.

Funny ones. Surprising ones.

All of them real.

All of them his.

[ILLUSTRATION: Max holding the thick, full atlas, proud expression, Grandma looking on happily]

Page 14

"Look, Grandma!" Max showed her.

She read every single page.

"Max," she said quietly, "you've captured your whole year."

"These aren't just drawings."

"These are memories."

"Someday you'll look back and remember exactly how you felt."

[ILLUSTRATION: Grandma reading the atlas with Max, both smiling, pages full of memories]

Page 15

"What if I run out of pages?" asked Max.

"Then you get a new atlas," laughed Grandma.

"And you keep going."

"Adventures don't stop."

"As you grow up, they just get bigger."

[ILLUSTRATION: Grandma pointing to the shelf, suggesting many future atlases waiting to be filled]

Page 16

"Some people never fill an atlas," said Grandma.

"They don't notice their adventures."

"They don't write them down."

"They just let the days pass."

"But YOU," she pointed at Max, "YOU are different."

[ILLUSTRATION: Grandma with serious but loving expression, hand on Max's shoulder]

Page 17

Max looked at his atlas one more time.

The caterpillar.

The block tower.

The bike ride.

His new friend.

His dad.

The firefly.

It was all real.

It was all HIM.

[ILLUSTRATION: Max reading through his atlas, moonlight, peaceful smile, thoughtful expression]

Page 18

The next morning, Max got a new blank notebook.

"This is my Year Two atlas," he said.

He opened to the first page.

"What should my first adventure be?" he wondered.

Then he smiled.

"Anything I want."

[ILLUSTRATION: Boy with new blank notebook, pen ready, eyes bright with endless possibilities, morning sunshine]

Page 19

THE END

But your adventure has just begun.

Back Matter

What Is An Adventure?

An adventure doesn't have to be scary or far away.

An adventure is:

- Something you notice
- Something you feel
- Something that makes you smile or learn
- Something worth remembering

Make Your Own Adventure Atlas

You can make one too! Here's how:

1. Get a blank notebook
2. Go do something fun (play, explore, learn, create)
3. Draw what happened
4. Write about how you felt

5. Keep it forever

Fun Questions to Ask Yourself

- What made me happy today?
- What did I learn?
- Who made me laugh?
- What was hard but I did it anyway?
- What am I proud of?

Share Your Adventures

Did you make an Adventure Atlas?

Take a photo and show your friends!

Adventures are even more fun when people hear about them.

Reading Level: Ages 7-9 (Early Chapter Reader)

Word Count: ~1,000 words

Format: Picture Book (19 illustrated pages + back matter)

Best For: Parent-child reading or independent reading

What This Book Teaches

■ Self-awareness — Noticing your own feelings and experiences

■ Mindfulness — Paying attention to the present moment

- Documentation — Writing things down so you remember
- Gratitude — Appreciating everyday moments
- Creativity — Expressing yourself through art
- Friendship — Sharing experiences with others
- Growth mindset — Understanding that adventures get bigger as you grow

ILLUSTRATION NOTES

Style: Warm, colorful watercolor or digital art

Key Scenes That NEED Illustrations:

- Page 2: Max reaching for mysterious book
- Page 3: Opening the blank book (magical feeling)
- Page 4: Grandma explaining
- Page 6: Kids with blocks, tower falling
- Page 7: Max drawing in atlas
- Page 8: Max watching caterpillar
- Page 10: Montage of different adventures
- Page 12: Max and Zoe exploring
- Page 13: Max holding full atlas
- Page 14: Grandma reading with Max
- Page 18: Max with new blank notebook, ready to begin again

Illustration Budget:

- Professional illustrator: $1,500-3,500 (19 pages × $80-185/page)
- Semi-professional: $500-1,500
- AI-generated (Midjourney/DALL-E): $100-300 (1 credit per image)
- DIY with your phone camera/drawings: Free-$50

Color Palette: Warm oranges, soft blues, greens, golds. Cozy, inviting, inspiring.

PUBLICATION PATH

Option 1: Just the Words (PDF)

- Already ready to go
- Use Pandoc to convert to PDF
- Upload to Gumroad ($7-15)
- Post on Substack

Option 2: With Illustrations (Professional)

- Hire illustrator: 2-4 weeks
- Add illustrations to Markdown
- Convert to PDF with better formatting
- Upload to Gumroad ($17-27)
- Post on Substack as paid post ($5-10/copy)

Option 3: With Illustrations (AI-Generated)

- Use Midjourney or DALL-E
- Generate 19 images (10-20 minutes)
- Insert into PDF
- Cost: $50-100 total
- Upload to Gumroad ($12-20)

Written for curious 7-year-olds and the parents who want to help them remember.

Adventure Atlas — Your story, drawn and written by you.